

Série R

The Lallier 'R' evolution

The Série R joined LALLIER's Permanent Collection from mid-2015. With a new haute couture inspired, textured label, a new code appears.

This code is easy to decipher, the letter 'R', the first letter of 'Récolte', the French word for 'harvest', is followed by a three digit number denoting a specific year, e.g. R.012 means that this new champagne is mostly based on the 2012 vintage.

Each Série R Champagne is therefore the reflection of the LALLIER style, expressed through a predominant vintage.

The Série R range will therefore logically expand each year: R.013 and R.014 will succeed R.012, etc., taking champagne-lovers on a fabulous voyage through the vintages, after these have spent a few years maturing in the cellars.

Through this innovative and educational approach, Francis Tribaut wanted to highlight exactly what makes LALLIER different:

Parsimonious use of reserve wines in order to preserve the authenticity of the vintage, as far as possible
Champagnes produced exclusively from the two noble grape varieties of chardonnay and pinot noir
Blends of single vineyard selections, by village and by grape variety, including LALLIER's best Grand Cru terroirs, in every champagne.

The use of LALLIER's own starter yeast for vinification, followed by a long ageing period in the cellars and low 'dosage' to preserve the original texture of the champagnes.

The Série R champagnes ideally symbolize the LALLIER style: precise, personal and distinguished.

R.012

BRUT

Since 1906, LALLIER is a manufacture of prestigious crus de Champagne. The "Série R" is the result of a deep reflection upon one year's harvest. A large majority of the cuvee R.012 comes from the vintage 2012 (38% chardonnay, 62% pinot noir). The rich and creamy delicacy of this wine perfectly matches with the art of drinking and eating well.

The 2012 Harvest

2012 was fraught with difficulties and worries, but turned out to be a great year... The succession of bad weather during the growing season seemed never-ending, putting the vine and putting us in a very bad mood. Doubts set in and we were seriously tempted to throw in the blanket!

But in the few weeks running up to the harvest, the climate finally gave us a break!

Harvesting took place in the middle of September in perfect weather for both the grapes and the pickers.

The pinot noir attained superb maturity with an exceptional concentration of sugar. We saw a lovely balance of acidity and a pH which was fairly low for the maturity level. The chardonnay also ripened superbly.

Everything turned out to be perfect in the end, and we were able to press grapes of exceptional quality. The conditions when we started our 'cru by cru' vinification work for the R.012 champagne could not have been better.

Food pairings & flavours

R.012 is a symbol of balance and aromatic expression. It is clad in a bright, golden yellow hue. Initially delicate with subtle, fresh aromas of citrus and white flowers, this champagne then opens out to sumptuous notes of plums and acacia honey. R.012 gently coats the palate and its creamy bubbles are simply fabulous. The finish is long and caressing.

With starters, R.012 pairs perfectly with snails in sweet parsley butter. For the main dish, try this great gastronomic champagne with squid seared «à la plancha», a touch of garlic and tomato caviar, or with a beef tournedos with smoked bacon, served with polenta, basil, and confit tomatoes. In terms of cheese, it suits fine, hard and semi-hard cheeses, such as Appenzell or mature Comté. When it comes to dessert, «tarte Tatin» or pear cheesecake are perfect matches.
